Displays/Exhibits

Community displays placed in the Library's display cases may be provided by individuals, non-profit organizations, and community groups for the enlightenment, education, and interest of the general public. Community displays are organized by Library staff.

Book displays are provided by Library staff in order to highlight portions of the Library's collection. Books selected for display should follow the same criteria as laid out in the Collection Development Policy regarding quality, diversity, and community interest.

No display may be used to promote singular viewpoints, opinions, or political stances or to promote a business.
