

Homeschooling Websites for Legal Questions

If you're nervous about how to comply with the laws, consult these homeschooling resources for reassurance. Homeschooling is legal in all 50 states and in many (though not all) foreign countries. Use the following list to find the information you need to homeschool confidently.

Home School Legal Defense Association

<https://hslida.org/>

A group of lawyers began this nonprofit organization in 1983. They provide representation for homeschoolers having legal challenges as well as information on current laws in the U.S. and abroad. If you want to research the legal status of homeschooling in another country, visit the international section (hslida.org/hs/international) for an overview on the current policies around the globe.

The Coalition for Responsible Home Education

<https://responsiblehomeschooling.org/>

Search for information by state with an easy-to-use map (find it here) and read about relevant homeschooling policies.
